
E-LEARNING

- Last Updated (15.04.2009)

"Technology is neither good nor bad... But neither is it neutral"
Melvin Krasberg, historian

Objectives

The main objective of the e-learning department at CESGA is the dissemination of the new Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) applied to teaching and learning in Galicia. Furthermore, we also aim to:

- study ICT when applied to learning-teaching processes.
- research in e-learning applied to different environments.
- analyze and evaluate state-of-the-art resources in educational technology, usage proposals, equipment, applications...
- promote and disseminate ICT applied to education.
- encourage the integration of educational institutions into the Knowledge Society.

Our activities are focused on:

the participation and design of new proposals to apply ICT in innovative and research projects at regional, national and European levels.

the analysis of the latest Information and Communication Technologies applied to the e-learning field. (Spanish)

the supply of planning, training and consulting services to our users in ICT applied to Education (Spanish)

- the design and development of Web-based course material.

You can find further information about our activities on the web portal <http://e-learning.cesga.es/>

If you wish to contact us, please send an e-mail to: .